

TO ORIENT SHOPS AND FAIR GROUNDS

Movement to Buy Grounds Given Fresh Boost.

S. L. NELSON TALKS

Tells of New Street Car Line-- and A. E. Stillwell.

The movement to secure the fair ground and establish a permanent fair, which would give two or three more meetings each year has taken a fresh start since the coming of Commodore Nelson. Several parties interested in the movement held a meeting in the law office of S. B. Amidon yesterday and another meeting will be held in the near future.

President of the fair association, C. M. Irwin, was in Topeka yesterday and one or two other parties interested were absent and that was the reason that action was postponed to a future meeting. It is the intention to have a better street car line to the fair grounds if the grounds are purchased by the organization and that was how the coming of Commodore Nelson gave the movement a fresh boost.

Mr. Nelson said last night that he thought the best way to insure the success of this movement was to get twenty-five responsible business men to put in one thousand dollars each and buy the grounds. He said he would be one of the twenty-five and his idea seemed to be that the grounds could be bought for ten thousand dollars. Then they could take five thousand to improve the grounds and have five thousand left for a permanent fund. We would also have a club house built on the grounds for the accommodation of the horsemen. When asked if he would build a new street car line to the fair grounds Commodore Nelson said:

"Just as soon as we see that an organization is formed that will insure the success of the fair we will build the new line. Our improvements will be permanent and we want to see a fair that promises to be kept up with a prospect of getting the state fair. I believe that this thing will be a permanent benefit to the business men of the city. It will bring people to the city and when the merchants come from other towns they will visit the wholesale houses and in this way they will get a great many new customers and they will hold them when they get them. People who come will also buy of the retailers and the right kind of a fair will bring a great many people to the city during the year."

"If this movement to establish a good fair promises to be successful it is not our intention to rebuild the street car line on Main south of Harry street. We would build west on Harry to Fairbairn or Gold street and thence south to the fair grounds. The reason for taking this route is to have a line that will reach the fair grounds and the Orient machine shops. We would not cross the river but run to the bridge that will be built at that point.

"We are making our calculations just the same as if the Orient shops were built and that means that we have full confidence that they will be built. I do not think there is any question about A. E. Stillwell doing just what he has promised to do here. Disarrangement of money matters might cause him to delay the matter for a time but he will get there finally and Wichita will get the machine shops.

"I intend to have the line built and a loop inside of the fair grounds and have the loop inside with wire screen like the tanks have and then people could pay their fare and go in and take their seats in the cars and conductors would not have to push among the passengers to get the fares when we would be hauling big loads.

"I believe that if the right men will take hold of this fair business it will be one of the most profitable investments Wichita people ever made. They ought to have two or three more meetings every year and a regular county fair and then go after the state fair. Wichita is already a city and every time I come here I am astounded at the growth of the place. It is the place for a fair and a good one. The people will patronize it liberally if you give them entertainments worth the money they will pay for it."

MONEY IS MISSING.

Chief of Police Thinks Marion Brockman "Planted" It.

Marion Brockman, a painter employed by J. A. Bishop, is locked up in the city jail charged with embezzling $80 of the firm's money.

Brockman was sent to the Fourth National bank in the afternoon at 1:30 with $118.31 to deposit, $80 of which was in currency and the balance in checks. When a check came and he had not returned the bookkeeper, who had sent him, became alarmed at his continued absence and telephoned to the bank to find if he had been there. They replied that he had not. The bookkeeper then notified the police and Brockman was arrested a half hour later in a place at 728 East Douglas in a hazy condition. He had the checks with him when arrested by the $80 was missing.

When brought into the police court Brockman claimed that he knew nothing of the money. He told a story to the chief of the effect that he had been drugged by a man on Douglas avenue before he reached the bank.

Chief Burt said last night that it was his opinion that the prisoner had "planted" the cash and that his story of being drugged was a very thin one. As yet no warrant has been sworn out against him.

REVIVAL SERVICES CLOSE.

Last night brought to a close the union revival services of the Baptist churches of the city conducted by Evangelist Paul Price at the First Baptist church. The meetings were very successful and attracted large crowds. Mr. Price is a sweet spirited, cultured Christian gentleman and his discourses have in them the right ring. While he has not shunned to speak boldly it has been done in a very dignified and courteous way. He started last night over the Missouri Pacific for Newark, N. J., where he begins another service next Sunday.

At the First Baptist church Sunday the services of the day will be of an evangelistic nature. In the evening the ordinance of baptism will be administered to a large number of converts of the meetings.

NEWS FROM ALL THE RAILROADS

Russel Harding Settles with Injured Employee.

J. M. GARRETT GETS $8,000

Items of Interest About Different Employees.

It has just been learned that both James M. Garrett and his fireman, who were injured in the Missouri Pacific wreck west of Fort Scott early last spring, have been paid their claims and that the settlements were made between the two injured men and the second highest official of the company, Russell Harding, vice-president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Harding was formerly division superintendent of the Missouri Pacific at this place, during which time he knew Garrett and recognized in him a careful and loyal servant of the company. Just before he was injured Garrett had nearly completed the erection of a new home in this city, where he intended to move his family as soon as it was completed.

At the time he was injured, Garrett was pulling a passenger train. A few miles west of Fort Scott, just after rounding a curve one night, the headlight of the locomotive flashed upon some cars standing on a trestle. Garrett immediately applied the air and stayed with the train when the collision occurred. The fireman jumped just before the train reached the trestle.

The shock of the collision threw Garrett from the locomotive cab to the creek below, breaking one of his legs near the hip. He was an inmate of the Mercy hospital at Fort Scott for some time, and later he was transferred to the Wichita hospital, where he received treatment. He is now living at Fort Scott.

Nothing had yet been said about the amount of indemnity the injured man was to receive, but it was generally understood that it would be ample without the necessity of recourse to legal action. Just before Mr. Garrett left the Louis hospital, when he was but a few weeks ago, he was visited by General Claim Agent Jones, who, after talking over the matter a few moments, expressed a desire to leave the matter of settlement to the personal attention of Vice President Harding. Mr. Garrett thought little of the matter, feeling satisfied that his claim would be adjusted in due time, so he went to his home at Wichita.

About two weeks ago the man who had never held a position higher than that occupied by a humble engine man, received a visit from Russell Harding, who was accompanied by Division Superintendent Nedrow, of Wichita, and a stenographer. Mr. Garrett was at first just a little bit startled at the appearance of so distinguished a guest, but then he had no need to be; the official was just the same to the engineer as he had been years before, when he was but a minor officer, and the crippled engineer was made to feel perfectly at ease.

A pleasant conversation ensued. Mr. Harding inquired after the welfare of the engineer and his family. The two talked for some time on various topics, when the visitor suddenly inquired:

"Well, Garrett, about how much do we owe you for your injury?"

Mr. Garrett was a little surprised, but frankly explained that he had been thinking the matter over and had concluded that he should receive about $7,000 or $7,500, considering that he would never again be able to resume his duties as an engineer.

"I appreciate that," said the official, "and will just raise you $8,000, giving you $5,000 as the amount of your indemnity."

This was not all. After receiving a warm expression of gratitude from the old engineer, Mr. Harding turned to the stenographer and dictated an order something like this:

"To All Superintendents: Upon application of James Garrett, his wife, or either of his daughters, issue transportation and from any points on the Missouri Pacific system. This to remain in effect until countermanded by me."

News by Special Correspondence to the Eagle From the Missouri Pacific Eleventh Street Crossing.

We may always depend on our day switching crew at the Missouri Pacific yards at Eleventh street, for just as regular as the sun comes up in the morning Mr. Spencer (known as Daddy), the engineer, and Robert Young, the foreman, are always on hand.

In speaking of our faithful ones, we must not forget our watchman, Mr. Mark, for when he isn't there we'll know that the company have moved their yards out far enough where there will be no crossings to watch or block.

Chad (known as night conductor), reminds us sometimes of Rip Van Winkle, with that coarse bunch of spinach on his face.

Take Notice—Car inspectors or engineers who wear greasy clothes are forbidden to sit in the operator's new chair at Eleventh street.

We understand that E. B. De Graffenreid, our day yard clerk, is going to drive through to New Mexico on a pleasure trip in the spring, where he expects to settle down.

A. B. Thacker, night yardmaster, is laying off on account of sickness. But business still goes on as before.

Transferred over seventy cars today. Looks as though we should have a new office (imaginary).

Today is pay-day and all the day men are going to attend the Wizard of the Nile tonight.

The day and night car inspectors are still on the strike for warmer weather and shorter hours.

JUDGE DALE IS SUSTAINED

IMPORTANT LAND CASE PASSED UPON BY SUPREME COURT.

Looks Like the Doc. Black Property Will Go to M. R. Diver and Mrs. N. A. English.

Dyer & Davis have received word that the supreme court of Kansas has sustained Judge Dale's decision in the case of M. R. Diver vs. Cora Black which involves title to some valuable lands in this city.

During his life time Dock Black built out into the big Arkansas river west of Diver's property one hundred and four feet. The ground is now valuable and Mr. Diver brought suit in the district court to recover possession of it claiming that he owned the made land between his property and the water's edge when made by filling just the same as if it had been formed by natural accretion. Judge Dale took this view of the case and decided in Diver's favor and the defendants appealed to the supreme court.

Attorney John Davis said yesterday that this decision, if carried out, would give Mrs. N. A. English the property on Douglas avenue near the bridge now claimed by the niece of Dock Black, suit to recover which has been filed and is now pending in the district court of this county.

Davis said that N. A. English bought this ground of Griffen Stein and some time in the eighties he and his son George English commenced to build a barn on it, but was enjoined by Dock Black on the theory that it was a street. The temporary injunction was granted, but when the final hearing came the injunction was dissolved and Black lost his case. When Mr. Black found it was not a street he went and built a house on the ground and took possession of it himself and held it until the time of his death. The two cases are practically the same and that is the reason the lawyers think this decision in this case practically settles the other.

This land claimed by Mrs. English fronts on Waco and Douglas and is now worth several thousand dollars.

CERTIFICATE IS FOUND.

Polly Gossett May Now Be Married as Planned.

Judge Knott received a letter yesterday morning from Polly Gossett of Kiowa making anxious inquiry about her marriage certificate which she had lost or misplaced in some store in this city last Monday.

After much hustling on the part of the probate judge, the certificate was located and later in the evening was mailed to the anxiously awaiting couple in Kiowa. It had been left in the East Side Racket where the newly married couple had done a little shopping before their departure from the city.

The following is a copy of the letter which was received yesterday:

Kiowa, Kan., Jan. 12, 1904.
Probate Judge, Wichita, Kas.
Dear Sir: We left the certificate you gave us earlier at a grocery store where there is a butcher shop and roller and grocery all combined on the corner of Douglas and Imperial street or at a drug store on the south side of a burg street in the same block the postoffice is in. It will no doubt be handed back to you and we will send you stamps to send it here as we will be here a couple of weeks any way and if it is not handed back, right and tell us what it will cost us and we will send you the money to fill out another one just like it yours truly.

FAIR WEATHER PREVAILS.

"May Be Colder but Nothing Serious Yet," Says Todd.
Forecast for Wichita and vicinity today: Fair weather.
For Kansas: Fair and warmer.
"There is nothing in the atmosphere," said Mr. Todd, "to make one afraid of approaching bad weather. It is quite likely that the cold wave may have to be delayed several times before spring, but nothing serious is at present to be predicted."

Clear weather is general this morning in all sections except over the Ohio and northern Mississippi valleys and the northern half of the Pacific coast. Snow was falling this morning at Davenport and rain at Portland, Ore. The precipitation in the past 24 hours has been unimportant. The Alberta low is still central over northern Montana. The plateau region area of high pressure that has dominated the weather conditions west of the Rocky mountains for the past week continues central over the middle plateau. There has been a general rise in temperature in the past 24 hours from the Mississippi river westward to the Rocky mountains.

Minimum temperature, 20 degrees; maximum, 37 degrees.

UNION REVIVAL MEETINGS.

There is No Abatement of Interest in Meetings.
No abatement of interest was seen in the meetings of yesterday afternoon. The First Presbyterian church was well filled at 3 p. m. The evangelist preached on the text: "Repent not because the spirits are subjected unto you, but rejoice because your name is written in Heaven." His theme was Heavenly citizenship. That a Christian soldier but represents the Divine government as a United States soldier represents the government of our country. As a soldier he has the resources of Heaven at their command. He portrays the conflict between right and wrong, between sin and righteousness. He spoke of victory for the right; that it was a matter of rejoicing to belong to the victory side.

After the sermon the committee on home prayer meetings met and arranged for enlargement of their work. A ministerial meeting was held after the committee meeting. The Sabbath day meetings were arranged. An early Sunday morning service will be given at one of the churches. It will probably be at the house that John Wesley used so much. 8:30 a. m. A few of the pastors of the city will exchange points at 11 a. m. At 2:30 p. m. a general mass meeting for all classes will be held at the Auditorium. At 7:30 Sunday evening a special service will be held for men at the Auditorium, while at the same hour a special service will be held for the women at the First Methodist church, conducted by Revs. Lynch and Bradt.

Standing room was in demand at the First Presbyterian church last night. A holy awe settled down on the large congregation present. The solo sung by Mr. Hillis was one of his best. Mr. Ostrom took for his text the saying of the thief on the cross, "Remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom." His appeal for a frank confession of sin was the most urgent he has given. The vast multitude listened with breathless silence. Nearly 100 passed into the inquiry room.

Mr. Ostrom announced a special meeting for the Sunday school workers today at 4:15 p. m. All teachers and superintendents are asked to be present. Meetings will be held next week in the boarding houses of the city for the benefit of the students of the colleges; also in some of the public buildings for the business men.
